A Lost Cause

The action of a body of Philadelphia business men in sending out a letter requesting both Grim and Berry to withdraw and to nominate a third man jointly on the Democratic ticket for Governor, is but one of the many evidences that the Keystone party alone has no weight or significance. United with the Democratic party and subservient to its organization and machinery, the Keystone following would undoubtedly figure more in its opposition to the Republican party. Alone it will come out a sorry third in the race. That is why those who are opposed to the Republican policy of protection in the State are trying to effect a fusion of the opposing forces, instead of hopelessly firing their ammunition into empty air.

In point of organization, aggressiveness and efficiency the Keystone party has nothing in comparison with the Lincoln party movement of four years ago, which nominated Lewis Emery, Jr., an independent Republican for Governor, who was also endorsed by the Democrats. With the aid of the Democratic organization the Lincolnists waged a most aggressive campaign. Mr. Emery is a trained politician, thoroughly conversant with State affairs, and withal a fighter. His battles in behalf of the independent producers against the Standard Oil company had given him a national reputation, and he had the support of many interests that contributed money and influence in the campaign. Yet with all the issues of the capitol steal and the political bank failures of the State the independent Republican vote was insignificant. Without the aid of the Democrats Mr. Emery would have carried but one county in the State, McKean, his home county.

How in the world Berry expects to win in the face of these odds surpasses comprehension. With no organization, no money, no issue and no sentiment this campaign represents one of the most forlorn hopes that was ever waged.

What is Needed.

What is needed in this section more than anything else at the present time to help solve the living problem is more cows, pigs and chickens. Milk is scarce at all times and the supply is hardly equal to the demand. Butter remains at the thirty-five cent mark the year around. Eggs are in the luxury class, white pork is selling at prices paid for the Thanksgiving and Christmas turkey a few years ago. The family cow, the pigpen and chicken coop have been banished from the homesteads, and the absence of these homey economic factors creates a big deficiency in the food supply of the country, and very materially enhances the cost of living.

While stock and poultry raising cannot be very well carried on within the limits of cities and large towns, there is always ample room in the suburbs. Many urban dwellers could secure facilities to pasture a cow, or keep a pig or a chicken yard on some of the waste land near at hand. In many of the suburbs of the larger towns are numerous farms held by real estate companies which could be utilized until the land is sold for building purposes. It was the great aggregate of small producers that formerly kept the price of living within bounds, and nothing but a return to former conditions will effect a change. The family cow, the pig-pen and the chicken coop is one of the solutions in the problem of living, and those who can take advantage of this condition will derive a big profit by it.

Obeys the Law.

The action of the Monongahela Valley Automobile association in assisting the local police in seeing that the laws governing these vehicles is enforced, will do much toward eliminating the prejudice of the public against automobiles. Because of the recklessness of a few drivers here and there an impression has gained ground that auto owners generally are disregarding the rights of the public and endangering life and limb at will. Nothing is further from the truth, and the efforts of responsible persons owning and driving the autos to safeguard the public will not only make conditions easier all around, but will add to the efficiency in the use of the auto in its utility capacity.

There are probably no more reckless drivers of autos abroad than there are of horses. The machine is not so quickly controlled as horses, because of the greater average speed at which it is driven, and that is the reason perhaps why a greater number of accidents proportionately have resulted since the auto made its appearance. This is a feature to take in consideration in driving an auto, and to insure carefulness and watchfulness is one of the functions of the newly formed association. The auto is destined to play an important part in the transportation facilities of the future, and anything that will add to its efficiency is a public benefit.

RADICAL CHANGE IN WOMEN'S SHOES

The Wonderful Ease of the Red Cross Shoe Brings Out Many Imitations

Shoe Manufacturers All Over the United States Trying to Produce a Flexible Sole

One of the greatest successes ever made in the shoe business, said Mr. Beerens, the reliable shoe man of 513 Fallowfield avenue, yesterday, is the Red Cross Shoe. It has taught women that comfort and style can be perfectly combined, and as a result a revolution is taking place in the making of women's shoes. Other manufacturers are trying every method they can think of to get the results secured by the Red Cross Tanning Process. Soles are "slashed," "flexed" and "worked" in an effort to make them flexible, but like all imitations they lack the merit of the original.

The superiority of the Red Cross Shoe lies in the fact that its sole is the highest grade leather put through a special tanning process, which takes six months' time. No acids or "stuffing" of any kind are used to hurry it through. As a result all the natural life and elasticity of the leather are preserved. It bends with the foot, giving a delightful feeling of ease and comfort, and its durability is not in the least impaired.

The numerous imitations of the Red Cross Shoe cannot use this special tanning process, so they endeavor to make "just as good" a shoe from the ordinary sole-leather of commerce. Much of this is made in six weeks' time. It cannot be compared to the Red Cross sole-leather in quality and it has very little flexibility. It is "broken up" by machinery in an effort to make it flexible and the result is never satisfactory. Women are learning to avoid these "made-over" substitutes and are demanding the genuine Red Cross Shoe.

A great many women, continued Mr. Beerens, have had the idea that a comfortable shoe could not have any sale. They have become so used to "break in" ordinary shoes to get the style they want that the Red Cross Shoe proves somewhat of a revelation. They find that it has all the style they could ask for—in fact, they can wear closer fit, and they do not have to break it in. The new styles of fall are the smartest, trimmest shoes we have ever had in our store. Any woman will find it a pleasure to look at them. It will only be necessary to try them on her feet and allow her to bend the flexible sole to make her a Red Cross Shoe convert for life.

Elephant Threnodies.

The natives of certain portions of south central Africa, says the Duchess of Aosta in Harper's Weekly, look on the death of an elephant as an event. They attach an almost religious aspect to it. "As soon as the animal stalked stretched out on the ground the hunters climb upon the huge, still warm body and there perform a dance, gesticulating and shaking their guns, accompanied by a sort of litany, in which they extol the animal and his qualities, his strength, his size, his cunning; then they praise the skill of the hunter, his prompt eye, his accurate shot. And this song is just murmured, as if they were afraid that if they raised their voices they would attract the curse of the spirit which has just left the animal and is still floating round him."

The Cry of the Age is "Back to the Farm"

With the best market in the world at his door, the intensive farmer located in the Monongahela valley is the wise man of his generation.

Every town has as much need of the small truck, fruit and poultry farms around it as it has for more factories. Such farms make living better and cheaper for the laboring man and more business for the merchant.

I have secured control of a large farm within five minutes walk of the borough limits and will, within the next six weeks, sell it out in small farms. I now have purchasers for about one-half of it and owing to the great demand for small farms near Charleroi expect to close all sales for these farms in a very short time.

A farm big enough for all the boys to work as a truck, poultry and fruit farm while the father works at the mill, can be bought for the price of a cheap town lot. Good country school nearby.

A farm big enough to require the whole time of one intensive farmer can be bought for $500.00. Read the Pittsburg papers about the great land show which will be held there within the next few weeks and learn what can be raised on a few acres of ground by the new methods of intensive farming.

Call at the office of Charles O. Frye, 511 Washington Avenue, and get full particulars.

A BAG OF GOLF CLUBS.

They Picture In a Way the Various Phases of Human Society.

Devotees of the links will be interested to learn that, in the opinion of a philosophical student of their ancient game, a bag of golf clubs is a symbolical epitome of human society.

In the front rank you have the driver, smooth, polished, elegant, the aristocrat of the circle, to whose lot falls the showy role in the day's performance, who disdains to play his part on the level of his fellows, and must have his sphere of operations artificially raised above the plane of the common earth. The brassy is your rich commoner, substituting a barrier of metal for the tee that confers rank on his social superior. After these come the humbler clubs, lofters and mashies, the common herd, who, like the butchers, shoemakers, and tillers of the ground among human beings, have the bulk of the work to do, and can afford no polish save what comes from keeping themselves clean, which at times is no easy task. Apart from them all stands the niblick, the good Samaritan of golf, resorted to only when the player is in a serious difficulty. The function of the niblick is to aid the golfer in the day of trouble, and his destiny, after having done his duty in that state of life, is to be relegated to the limbo of forgetfulness.—Argonaut.

AN ALGERIAN HOTEL.

The Attempt to Describe Its Attractions in English.

Things are not always as they seem, even in an advertisement. This truth dawned upon Robert Crawford when he was in Algiers, and he tells of the reason for his conclusion in "Reminiscences of Foreign Travel." Mr. Crawford, not being satisfied with his lodgings, procured a copy of the Journal des Etrangers and proceeded to look up a hotel.

After a patient investigation the choice seemed to lie between two. One, according to the notice, possessed "every English comfort" and had "large" as well as small apartments. The other—and I was strongly drawn to it—advertised as follows:

Flr Glass House.
O.
Full South.
Mls of large Parc.
Tramways to and from town every 10 minutes.

I found the place. To my surprise there was no conservatory or glass house of any kind and no fir trees. As I pondered over the fact the solution suddenly came to me—it was a "first class house," of course. What of the rest of the advertisement? The hotel had a southern aspect and was situated in a park. As for the tramway, that was pure fiction.

Proof.

Drugs and Sickness.

It is not too much to say that the medical profession today no longer believes that any drug (with a few exceptions, like quinine in malaria, mercury and the antitoxins) will cure a disease as such. All that it will do is so to modify conditions as to help the body in its fight against disease.

We are no longer content, in the biting phrase of Voltaire, to "pour bodies of which we know little into drugs of which we know less." What will help one patient will harm another, and what may be beneficial in the early stage of a disease will be useless or even injurious in a later stage.

In the language of Captain Cuttle, the effect of a drug, like "the bearing of an observation," "depends on the application on it." It is neither rational nor safe blindly to swallow down a drug which is highly recommended in a certain disease and expect it to "do the rest." There is no such thing as a universal cure for a disease nor even a remedy which can be relied upon as "a good thing to take" at any and all stages of it.—Dr. Woods Hutchinson in Delineator.

Gagadig Gigadab.

There was a quaint old man in Manchester, England, who for many years went by the unique name of Gagadig Gigadab. His original name was John Smith, and for many years he brooded over the possibilities of mistaken identity involved in it. The name figured frequently in criminal records, and he became abnormally apprehensive lest he might be confused with some of the bad John Smiths. At last what he feared so much actually happened. One morning the papers reported the arrest of an accountant in a bank for embezzlement, and through some blunder of the reporter the identity of the embezzler was confused with the subject of this article, who was also a bank accountant. Then and there he determined to assume a name like unto no other ever borne by mortal man. And in Gagadig Gigadab most people will agree that he succeeded in so doing.—New York Tribune.

At a Wedding Breakfast.

After a marriage recently the bride party partook of a sumptuous breakfast, toward the end of which a younger brother of the bride got up and said solemnly, raising his glass:

"Ladies and gentlemen, I have to propose a toast, which, however, must be drunk standing. Please take your glasses and rise up."

The guests, although somewhat bewildered, did so.

"Now," said the young scapegrace, "if you will remain standing for a few minutes I'll find out who has been sitting on my new hat."—London Tit-Bits.

An Anachronism.

Interesting Reading for Tubercular Invalids

The makers of Eckman's Alternative—the medicine that is curing tuberculosis all over the country—will send direct, pamphlet and other literature, that every consumptive should read. It tells in their own language the story of those whom Eckman's Alternative has cured. Such straight-from-the-heart evidence as this booklet holds is convincing. No matter if you have unfortunately spent time and money experimenting with nearly every "cure" under the firmament—investigate Eckman's Alternative. If shown the heart-touching affidavit of a father whose only son was cured of tuberculosis by Eckman's Alternative after all hope had been abandoned, would it not carry some weight with you? A specimen—718 Cherry St., Phila., Pa. Gentlemen. In July, 1905, I first noticed the conditions that showed I had Consumption. I lost weight rapidly; had a hollow cough, hemorrhages and very severe night sweats. My brother recommended Eckman's Alternative. In the Fall of 1905 I began to take it. At this time I am perfectly well and robust. My appetite is good and my weight has increased from 110 to 140 pounds. Not a trace of my old trouble remains. I will gladly express the merits of this medicine to anyone. (Signed) M. L. GERHARDT. Eckman's Alternative cures Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever, Throat and Lung Affections. CHEER TENER IN TOUR OF TRIUMPH

Thousands Greet Republican Nominee For Governor.

MEETS ISSUES SQUARELY

Frank and Manly Statements Command the Respect and Confidence of the People.

As John Kinley Tener, nominee for governor of the Republican party, continues on his tour of Pennsylvania, meeting the people face to face, grasping them by the hand and looking every man squarely in the eye and not afraid to meet any issue or question that may be raised, he is growing in popularity in every direction. The more the voters see of him the better they like him, and upon every hand he is being commended for the frankness and candor with which he is discussing the needs of the commonwealth, the policies of the Republican party and his personal aims and ambitions to insure an administration that will command the confidence and the admiration of all of the citizens of the state.

Mr. Tener and his colleagues on the Republican ticket, John M. Reynolds, Henry Houck and Charles F. Wright, nominees for lieutenant governor, secretary of internal affairs and state treasurer respectively, are enthusiastic over the receptions that have been accorded them in every county they have visited. Their meetings in the anthracite coal regions were especially well attended and afforded Mr. Tener an opportunity to demonstrate his keen interest in the wage-earners. His experiences as a lad employed in a steel mill in the great Pittsburgh region may in a measure explain his keen interest in the toilers of the state.

In commenting upon Pennsylvania conditions, Mr. Tener a few days ago said:

Protecting Wage-Earners.

"The Republican party of Pennsylvania has to its credit a long history of legislation for the benefit of the people and the honor of the commonwealth.

"Their laws have been enacted for the protection of the working people, most of which were placed upon the statute books at the request and with the advice of the organized workmen. Of this record we are justly proud, and we point to our action in the past as a guarantee of our intentions in the future. We recognize the fact that the development of our industries has brought with it new problems, new dangers, and altogether complex conditions that demand and deserve consideration and treatment by the law making and law administering powers of our commonwealth.

For Safety Appliances.

"Among the many subjects affecting the wage-earners which it will be our duty to consider in the future none is more important than the enactment of laws for the protection of the life, health and safety of the men and women who are engaged in industrial pursuits. The first requisite of a progressive community must be the safety and security of these people who are least able to protect themselves, and the prevention of industrial accidents is a problem that must appeal to all patriotic citizens of the commonwealth.

Responsibility of Employer.

"Closely related to the subject of industrial accidents and their prevention is the question of compensating workmen for losses by such accidents. The Republican party of Pennsylvania is responsible for the enactment of an employers' liability law, the provisions of which afford to workmen the opportunity of securing damages in many cases where they would not have the right to sue under the laws of many states.

"However, it is a regrettable fact that under any system of liability the workmen must engage in long and costly litigation, and that the waste of money by workmen and employers in prosecuting and defending suits of this character would go a long way if paid immediately to the injured workman, to relieve him in his distress.

Pennsylvania Should Lead

"We believe that the commonwealth of Pennsylvania, the greatest of all industrial states, should be among the first to put in operation advanced legislation in respect to this subject, and as a measure to that end it will be our purpose to recommend the appointment of a commission of representative workmen and employers, whose duty it shall be to investigate every phase of the question and recommend to the legislature a bill in accordance with the result of their investigation."

Mr. Franklin at the Bar.

Among the state papers for the year 1536 may be read a letter from John Bartlett to Henry VIII's minister, Thomas Cromwell, stating that in accordance with the recent act the mayor and aldermen had chosen Mr. Pryseley to attend the English parliament as the representative of Calais and that he had made certain arrangements about his passage into England.

One Thomas Boyd was elected as his colleague, and Calais continued to send M. P.'s to Westminster until, in the reign of Mary, we lost the stronghold we had held for over two centuries. This is the only instance in England's history of anything like colonial representation at Westminster unless indeed we reckon one or two exceptional occasions when colonial grievances have been voiced at the bar of the house of commons, as they were so brilliantly by Benjamin Franklin, when Burke said the scene reminded him of "a master examined by a parcel of schoolboys."—London News.

Learn to Laugh.

Laughter is the best of all tonics. Bacteria are humorless folk and hate the physical constitution that is late ways vibrating with the shocks of fun. This is a truism, but serviceable and likewise worth repeating are the platitudes on laughter as the great aseptic of the soul. It is true there are different kinds of laughter, and some of them need formaldehyde. There is a kind, too, that needs bicarbonate of soda as an antidote—another that calls for lithia tablets. But the right sort of laughter was stolen from the gods by some wiser Prometheus, and nothing can prevail against it. In America there is plenty of laughter, good, bad and indifferent, but mostly good, and much that is very good. It is one of our greatest national resources. May we conserve it always. A people that laugh kindly and often have not much to fear; a people that laugh wisely, nothing.—Chicago Tribune.

Fanny Dickens.

Fanny, the sister of Charles Dickens, was one of the first students entered at the old Royal Academy of Music when it opened its doors at Tottenham street in 1823, and at that time the students lived at the academy, only going home for the week end. "Every Sunday," Dickens told Forster, "I was at the academy at 9 o'clock in the morning to fetch her (Fanny), and we walked back there together at night." And the Sunday itself the two spent in the Marshalsea prison, where their father and mother then resided, owing to Mr. Dickens having "failed to propitiate his creditors." While her father was still in prison Fanny won a prize at the academy, and the future novelist, then engaged in pasting labels on blacking pots at 7 shillings a week, was present to see her receive it.—Westminster Gazette.

Twain and the Rivermen.

Mark Twain once told to a party of friends the following story on himself: On one occasion when he started on a trip down the Mississippi river on a flatboat he was advised never to answer the questions asked by rivermen on other boats and never to bandy words with them, as he would be sure always to come out second best. He followed the advice religiously for a time, but one day he thought he saw a chance to get the better of a riverman who called out:

"Hey, thar, what yer loaded with?"

"Jackasses. Don't you want to come aboard?" yelled back Twain.

"That's what I reckoned secin' as how they let their biggest donkey her their run of the deck!" came back Twain. Twain made a dive below as all the rivermen in the neighborhood set up a derisive laugh at his expense.

"Niggering" Logs.

The question was asked me as a native of Maine if I could find out what "niggering" logs meant in the statement "We niggered the logs." I found that to "nigger" logs was to save the labor of chopping them into lengths by piling them up crossed at points where it was desired to separate them. By building fires under these crossings several logs could be burned into sections at once. Because "a nigger" was supposed to be a lazy this lazy man's way of cutting logs into lengths was, naturally enough, called "niggering."—Appleton Morgan in New Shakespeareana.

Come both nights. Saturday night will be the closing night and we can all be together and say farewell to the Great Hatch Shows for 1910. 4141

Such a Bore to Dress.

A belated traveler who was compelled to stay all night in a backwoods cabin says that soon after the frugal meal a tall, gaunt youth of eighteen and an equally sallow and gaunt girl of seventeen, both barefooted, took their hats from wooden pegs in the wall and prepared to go out, whereupon the mother, taking her pipe from between her teeth, said reprovingly:

"Go 'long an' wash your feet, Levi—you and Looly, both! Hain't you 'shamed to go off to an evenin' party without washin' your feet?"

They obeyed, but as Levi took the washpan from a bench by the door he said with a grumble:

"I'd 'bout as soon stay home from a party as to have to fix up for it."

How Parchment Came to Be Used.

When the literary jealousy of the Egyptians caused them to stop the supply of papyrus, the king of Pergamos, a city in Asia Minor, introduced the use of sheepskin in a form called, from the place of its invention, parchment, whence our word parchment is believed to be derived. Vellum, a finer article, made from calfskin, was also used. Many of the books done on vellum in the middle ages were transcribed by monks, and often it took years to complete a single copy.

Eddystone Island.

The smallest inhabited island in the world is that on which the Eddystone lighthouse stands. At low water it is thirty feet in diameter. At high water the lighthouse, whose diameter at the base is eight and three-fourths feet, completely covers it. It is inhabited by three persons. It lies nine miles off the Cornish coast and fourteen miles southeast of Plymouth breakwater. Flatholme, an island in the British channel, is only a mile and a half in circumference, but, consisting mostly of rich pasture lands, supports a farm-house besides the lighthouse, with a revolving light 156 feet above the sea. There are about 100,000 islands, large and small, scattered over the oceans. America alone has 5,500 around its coasts. There are 365 in the bay of Rio Janeiro, 16,000 between Madagascar and India and some 1,200 off the eastern coast of Australia between its mainland and New Guinea.

Jenny Lind and the Trill.

Jenny Lind after years of steady practice believed that the much-coveted trill was for her an impossibility. She practiced hours a day, but was unable to accomplish the feat. One day, thoroughly discouraged, she was sitting in her garden when all at once she looked up into a tree. Above her a bird was trilling. She at once went to her piano and through some magic or power of imitation began the trill and from that day never had any further difficulty.

Six different makes of shoes in three months only to throw them away, was almost desperate until she found the Red Cross Shoe

The following letter is typical of the experiences of so many women that we asked to publish it:—

"I have been wearing the Red Cross Shoe for two years. I had, previous to finding the Red Cross Shoe, purchased and cast aside six different makes in about three months and was almost desperate over not being able to get comfortable shoes. Now I always call for the Red Cross Shoe."

If you want to know what real comfort is, wear the Red Cross Shoe this season.

Tanned by the special Red Cross process

The Red Cross sole is tanned by a special process which preserves all the natural life and suppleness of the leather. Though of regular thickness this sole is so supple you can bend it double when new.

This entirely prevents the burning and "drawing" stiff soles cause. The moment you put it on, you notice the difference—it is so easy on your feet. High Shoes $4, $4.50 and $5. Oxfords $3.50 and $4.

A Lost Cause

The action of a body of Philadelphia business men in sending out a letter requesting both Grim and Berry to withdraw and to nominate a third man jointly on the Democratic ticket for Governor, is but one of the many evidences that the Keystone party alone has no weight or significance.
United with the Democratic party and subservient to its organization and machinery, the Keystone following would undoubtedly figure more in its opposition to the Republican party. Alone it will come out a sorry third in the race. That is why those who are opposed to the Republican policy of protection in the State are trying to effect a fusion of the opposing forces, instead of hopelessly firing their ammunition into empty air.

In point of organization, aggressiveness and efficiency the Keystone party has nothing in comparison with the Lincoln party movement of four years ago, which nominated Lewis Emery, Jr., an independent Republican for Governor, who was also endorsed by the Democrats. With the aid of the Democratic organization the Lincolnites waged a most aggressive campaign. Mr. Emery is a trained politician, thoroughly conversant with State affairs, and withal a fighter.
His battles in behalf of the independent producers against the Standard Oil company had given him a national reputation, and he had the support of many interests that contributed money and influence in the campaign. Yet with all the issues of the capitol steal and the political bank failures of the State the independent Republican vote was insignificant. Without the aid of the Democrats Mr. Emery would have carried but one county in the State, McKean, his home county.

How in the world Berry expects to win in the face of these odds surpasses comprehension. With no organization, no money, no issue and no sentiment this campaign represents one of the most forlorn hopes that was ever waged.

What is Needed.

What is needed in this section more than anything else at the present time to help solve the living problem is more cows, pigs and chickens.
Milk is scarce at all times and the supply is hardly equal to the demand.
Butter remains at the thirty-five cent mark the year around. Eggs are in the luxury class, white pork is selling at prices paid for the Thanksgiving and Christmas turkey but a few years ago. The family cow, the pigpen and chicken coop have been banished from the homestead, and the absence of these homely economic factors create a big deficit in the food supply of the country, and very materially enhances the cost of living.

While stock and poultry raising cannot be very well carried on within the limits of cities and large towns, there is always ample room in the suburbs. Many urban dwellers could secure facilities to pasture a cow, or keep a pig or a chicken yard on some of the waste land near at hand. In many of the suburbs of the larger towns are numerous farms held by real estate companies which could be utilized until the land is sold for building purposes. It was the great aggregate of small producers that formerly kept the price of living within bounds, and nothing but a return to former conditions will effect a change.

The family cow, the pigpen and the chicken coop is one of the solutions in the problem of living, and those who can take advantage of this condition will derive a big profit by it.

Obedying the Law.

The action of the Monongahela Valley Automobile association in assisting the local police in seeing that the laws governing these vehicles is enforced, will do much toward eliminating the prejudice of the public against automobiles. Because of the recklessness of a few drivers here and there an impression has gained ground that auto owners generally are disregarding the rights of the public and endangering life and limb at will.
Nothing is further from the truth, and the efforts of responsible persons owning and driving the autos to safeguard the public will not only make conditions easier all around, but will add to the efficiency in the use of the auto in its utility capacity.

There are probably no more reckless drivers of autos abroad than there are of horses. The machine is not so quickly controlled as horses, because of the greater average speed at which it is driven, and that is the reason perhaps why a greater number of accidents proportionately have resulted since the auto made its appearance.
This is a feature to take in consideration in driving an auto, and to instil carefulness and watchfulness is one of the functions of the newly formed association. The auto is destined to play an important part in the transportation facilities of the future, and anything that will add to its efficiency is a public benefit.

RADICAL CHANGE IN WOMEN'S SHOES

The Wonderful Ease of the Red Cross Shoe Brings Out
Many Imitations

Shoe Manufacturers All Over the United States Trying to Produce a Flexible Sole

One of the greatest successes ever made in the shoe business, said Mr.
Beereens, the reliable shoe man of 513 Fallowfield avenue, yesterday, is the Red Cross Shoe. It has taught women that comfort and style can be perfectly combined, and as a result a revolution is taking place in the making of women's shoes. Other manufacturers are trying every method they can think of to get the results secured by the Red Cross Tanning Process. Soles are "slashed," "flexed" and "worked" in an effort to make them flexible, but like all imitations they lack the merit of the original.

The superiority of the Red Cross Shoe lies in the fact that its sole is the highest grade leather put through a special tanning process, which takes six months' time. No acids or "stuffing" of any kind are used to hurry it through. As a result all the natural life and elasticity of the leather are preserved. It bends with the foot giving a delightful feeling of ease and comfort, and its durability is not in the least impaired.

The numerous imitations of the Red Cross Shoe cannot use this special tanning process, so they endeavor to make "just as good" a shoe from the ordinary sole of leather of commerce.
Much of this is turned in six weeks time. It cannot be compared to the Red Cross sole leather in quality and it has very little flexibility. It is "broken up" by machinery in an effort to make it flexible and the result is never satisfactory. Women are learning to avoid these "made-over" substitutes and are demanding the genuine Red Cross Shoe.

A great many women, continued
Mr. Beereens, have had the idea that a comfortable shoe could not have any style. They have become so used to "break in" ordinary shoes to get the style they want that the Red Cross Shoe proves somewhat of a revelation. They find that it has all the style they could ask for—in fact, they can wear closer fit, and they do not have to break it in. The new styles of fall are the smartest, trim-mest shoes we have ever had in our store. Any woman will find it a pleasure to look at them. It will only be necessary to try them on her feet and allow her to bend the flexible sole to make her a Red Cross Shoe convert for life.

Elephant Threnodies.

The natives of certain portions of south central Africa, says the Duchess of Aosta in Harper's Weekly, look on the death of an elephant as an event.
They attach an almost religious aspect to it. "As soon as the animal stalked is stretched out on the ground the hunters climb upon the huge, still warm body and there perform a dance, gesticulating and shaking their guns, accompanied by a sort of litany, in which they extol the animal and his qualities, his strength, his size, his cunning; then they praise the skill of the hunter, his prompt eye, his accurate shot. And this song is just murmured, as if they were afraid that if they raised their voices they would attract the curse of the spirit which has just left the animal and is still floating round him."

An Ancient House.

The ancient Romans had a catapult that could hurl rocks more than a mile.

"Now I understand it."

"What?"

My landlord told me the house was a stone's throw from the depot. He must have had it on his hands since the time of the Caesars.

A Complex Rest Cure.

"Bliggins is a very vociferous person."

"Yes," replied Miss Cayenne, "but I don't blame him. The way a man of his mentality rests his nerves is by talking so loud he can't hear himself think."—Washington Star.

Center of Toughness.

Inquiring Tourist—Would you call this a tough town? Stray Native—Tough? Say, stranger, when we have old home week here detectives from all over the country come and pick out just who they want.—Puck.

The Cry of the Age is "Back to the Farm"

With the best market in the world at his door, the intensive farmer located in the Monongahela valley is the wise man of his generation.

Every town has as much need of the small truck, fruit and poultry farms around it as it has for more factories. Such farms make living better and cheaper for the laboring man and more business for the merchant.

I have secured control of a large farm within five minutes walk of the borough limits and will, within the next six weeks, sell it out in small farms. I now have purchasers for about one-half of it and owing to the great demand for small farms near Charleroi expect to close all sales for these farms in a very short time.

A farm big enough for all the boys to work as a truck, poultry and fruit farm while the father works at the mill, can be bought for the price of a cheap town lot. Good country school nearby.

A farm big enough to require the whole time of one intensive farmer can be bought for $500.00. Read the Pittsburg papers about the great land show which will be held there within the next few weeks and learn what can be raised on a few acres of ground by the new methods of intensive farming.

Call at the office of Charles O. Frye, 511 Washington Avenue, and get full particulars.

A BAG OF GOLF CLUBS.

They Picture in a Way the Various Phases of Human Society.

Devotees of the links will be interested to learn that, in the opinion of a philosophical student of their ancient game, a bag of golf clubs is a symbolical epitome of human society.

In the front rank you have the drive-ing, smooth, polished, elegant, the aristocrat of the circle, to whose lot falls the showy role in the day's performance, who disdains to play his part on the level of his fellows, and must have his sphere of operations artificially raised above the plane of the common earth. The brassy is your rich commoner, substituting a barrier of metal for the tee that confers rank on his social superior. After these come the humbler cleeks, lofters and mashies, the common herd, who, like the butchers, shoemakers, and tillers of the ground among human beings, have the bulk of the work to do, and can afford no polish save what comes from keeping themselves clean, which at times is no easy task. Apart from them all stands the niblick, the good Samaritan of golf, resorted to only when the player is in a serious difficulty. The function of the niblick is to aid the golfer in the day of trouble, and his destiny, after having done his duty in that state of life, is to be relegated to the limbo of forgetfulness.—Argonaut.

AN ALGERIAN HOTEL.

The Attempt to Describe Its Attractions in English.

Things are not always as they seem,
even in an advertisement. This truth dawned upon Robert Crawford when he was in Algiers, and he tells of the reason for his conclusion in "Reminiscences of Foreign Travel." Mr. Crawford, not being satisfied with his lodgings, procured a copy of the Journal des Etrangers and proceeded to look up a hotel.

After a patient investigation the choice seemed to lie between two.
One, according to the notice, possessed "every English comfort" and had "large as well as small apartments. The other—and I was strongly drawn to it—advertised as follows:

Fin Glass House.

Fall South.
Mts of large Parc.
Tramways to and from town every 10 minutes.

I found the place. To my surprise there was no conservatory or glass house of any kind and no fir trees. As I pondered over the fact the solution suddenly came to me—it was a "first class house" of course. What of the rest of the advertisement? The hotel had a southern aspect and was situated in a park. As for the tramway, that was pure fiction.

Proof.

"I'm after the gas bill."
"Gee! My husband forgot to leave the check—he's just gone."
"Are you sure he forgot to leave it?"
"Yes, he told me so just as he went."
—Cleveland Leader.

One of Many.

"Then you think you won't permanent place in her heart?"
"I'm just a notch on her parasol handle; that is all."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Drugs and Sickness.
It is not too much to say that the medical profession today no longer believes that any drug (with a few exceptions, like quinine in malaria, mercury and the antioxides) will cure a disease as such. All that it will do is so to modify conditions as to help the body in its fight against disease.

We are no longer content in the biting phrase of Voltaire, to "pour drugs of which we know little into bodies of which we know less." What will help one patient will harm another, and what may be beneficial in the early stage of a disease will be useless or even injurious in a later stage.
In the language of Captain Cuttle, the effect of a drug, like "the boaring" of an observation, "depends on the application on it." It is neither rational nor safe blindly to swallow down a drug which is highly recommended in a certain disease and expect it to "do the rest." There is no such thing as a universal cure for a disease nor even a remedy which can be relied upon as "a good thing to take" at any and all stages of it.—Dr. Woods Hutchinson in Delineator.

Gagadig Gigadab.

There was a quaint old man in Manchester, England, who for many years went by the unique name of Gagadig Gigadab. His original name was John Smith, and for many years he brooded over the possibilities of mistaken identity involved in it. The name figured frequently in criminal records, and he became abnormally apprehensive lest he might be confused with some of the bad John Smiths. At last what he feared so much actually happened.
One morning the papers reported the arrest of an accountant in a bank for embezzlement, and through some blunder of the reporter the identity of the embezzler was confused with the subject of this article, who was also a bank accountant. Then and there he determined to assume a name like unto no other ever borne by mortal man. And in Gagadig Gigadab most people will agree that he succeeded in so doing.—New York Tribune.

At a Wedding Breakfast.

After a marriage recently the bride party partook of a sumptuous breakfast, toward the end of which a younger brother of the bride got up and said solemnly, raising his glass:
"Ladies and gentlemen, I have to propose a toast, which, however, must be drunk standing. Please take your chairs and rise up."
The guests, although somewhat bewildered, did so.
"Now," said the young scapegrace,
"if you will remain standing for a few minutes I'll find out who has been sitting on my new hat."—London Tit-Bits.

An Anachronism.

When some celebrated pictures of Adam and Eve were seen on exhibition Mr. McNab was taken to see them. "I think no great things of the painter," said the gardener. "Why, man, remitting Adam wif a pipkin of a variety that wasna known until about twenty years ago!"

Hindering the Process.

Doctor—Well, John, how are you today?
John—Very bad; very bad. I wish Providence 'ud 'ave mussy on me an'
take me.
Wife—Ow can you expect it to if you won't take the doctor's physic?

Interesting Reading for Tubercular Invalids

with nearly every "cure" under the firm-ment—investigate Eckman's Alternative.
It shows the heart-touching affliction of a father whose only son was cured of tuberculosis by Eckman's Alternative after all hope had been abandoned, would it not carry some weight with you? A specimen:—718 Cherry St., Phila., Pa.
Gentlemen, "In July, 1905, I first noticed the conditions that showed I had Consumption. I lost weight rapidly, had a hollow cough, hemorrhages and very severe night sweats. My brother recommended Eckman's Alternative. In the Fall of 1905 I began to take it. At this time I am perfectly well and robust. My appetite is good and my weight has increased from 110 to 140 pounds.
(Not a trace of my old trouble remains.
I am glad to express the merits of this medicine to anyone.)

CHEER TENER IN TOUR OF TRIUMPH

Thousands Greet Republican Nominee For Governor.

Frank and Manly Statements Command the Respect and Confidence of the People.

As John Kinley Tener, nominee for governor of the Republican party, continues on his tour of Pennsylvania, meeting the people face to face, grasping them by the hand and looking every man squarely in the eye and not afraid to meet any issue or question that may be raised, he is growing in popularity in every direction. The more the voters see of him, the better they like him, and upon every hand he is being commended for the frankness and candor with which he is discussing the needs of the commonwealth, the policies of the Republican party and his personal aims and ambitions to insure an administration that will command the confidence and the admiration of all of the citizens of the state.

Mr. Tener and his colleagues on the Republican ticket, John M. Reynolds, Henry Houck and Charles F. Wright, nominees for lieutenant governor, secretary of internal affairs and state treasurer respectively, are enthusiastic over the receptions that have been accorded them in every county they have visited. Their meetings in the anthracite coal regions were especially well attended and afforded Mr. Tener an opportunity to demonstrate his keen interest in the wage-earners. His experiences as a lad employed in a steel mill in the great Pittsburgh region may in a measure explain his keen interest in the toilers of the state.

In commenting upon Pennsylvania conditions, Mr. Tener a few days ago said:

Protecting Wage-Earners.

"The Republican party of Pennsylvania has to its credit a long history of legislation for the benefit of the people and the honor of the commonwealth.

"Their laws have been enacted for the protection of the working people, most of which were placed upon the statute books at the request and with the advice of the organized workmen. Of this record we are justly proud, and we point to our action in the past as a guarantee of our intentions in the future. We recognize the fact that the development of our industries has brought with it new problems, new dangers, and altogether complex conditions that demand and deserve consideration and treatment by the law making and law administering powers of our commonwealth.

For Safety Appliances.

"Among the many subjects affecting the wage-earners which it will be our duty to consider in the future none is more important than the enactment of laws for the protection of the life, health and safety of the men and women who are engaged in industrial pursuits. The first requisite of a progressive community must be the safety and security of these people who are least able to protect themselves, and the prevention of industrial accidents is a problem that must appeal to all patriotic citizens of the commonwealth.

"In connection with this question, mine and factory inspection has been developed steadily in the state of Pennsylvania, and many laws have been enacted requiring employers to safeguard the lives and the health of the wage-earners. Further legislation upon this subject will be enacted just as fast as experience points out the necessity therefor.

Responsibility of Employer.

"Closely related to the subject of industrial accidents and their prevention is the question of compensating workmen for losses by such accidents. The Republican party of Pennsylvania is responsible for the enactment of an employers' liability law, the provisions of which afford to workmen the opportunity of securing damages in many cases where they would not have the right to sue under the laws of many states.

"However, it is a regrettable fact that under any system of liability the workmen must engage in long and costly litigation, and that the waste of money by workmen and employers in prosecuting and defending suits of this character would go a long way if paid immediately to the injured workman, to relieve him in his distress.

Pennsylvania Should Lead

"We believe that the commonwealth of Pennsylvania, the greatest of all industrial states, should be among the first to put in operation advanced legislation in respect to this subject, and as a measure to that end it will be our purpose to recommend the appointment of a commission of representative workmen and employers, whose duty it shall be to investigate every phase of the question and recommend to the legislature a bill in accordance with the result of their investigation."

Mr. Franklin at the Bar.

Among the state papers for the year 1536 may be read a letter from John Bartlett to Henry VIII's minister, Thomas Cromwell, stating that in accordance with the recent act the mayor and aldermen had chosen Mr. Pryseley to attend the English parliament as the representative of Calais and that he had made certain arrangements about his passage into England.

One Thomas Boyd was elected as his colleague, and Calais continued to send M. P.'s to Westminster until, in the reign of Mary, we lost the stronghold we had held for over two centuries. This is the only instance in England's history of anything like colonial representation at Westminster unless indeed we reckon one or two exceptional occasions when colonial grievances have been voiced at the bar of the house of commons, as they were so brilliantly by Benjamin Franklin, when Burke said the scene reminded him of "a master examined by a parcel of schoolboys."—London News.

Learn to Laugh.

Laughter is the best of all tonics. Bacilli are humorless folk and hate the physical constitution that is always vibrating with the shocks of fun. This is a truism, but serviceable and likewise worth repeating are the platitudes on laughter as the great aseptic of the soul. It is true there are different kinds of laughter, and some of them need formaldehyde. There is a kind, too, that needs bicarbonate of soda as an antidote—another that calls for litmus tablets. But the right sort of laughter was stolen from the gods by some wiser Prometheus, and nothing can prevail against it. In America there is plenty of laughter, good, bad and indifferent, but mostly good, and much that is very good. It is one of our greatest national resources. May we conserve it always. A people that laugh kindly and often have not much to fear; a people that laugh wisely, nothing.—Chicago Tribune.

Fanny Dickens.

Fanny, the sister of Charles Dickens, was one of the first students entered at the old Royal Academy of Music when it opened its doors at Tottenham street in 1823, and at that time the students lived at the academy, only going home for the week end. "Every Sunday," Dickens told Forster, "I was at the academy at 9 o'clock in the morning to fetch her (Fanny), and we walked back there together at night." And the Sunday itself the two spent in the Marshalsea prison, where their father and mother then resided, owing to Mr. Dickens having failed to propitiate his creditors." While her father was still in prison Fanny won a prize at the academy, and the future novelist, then engaged in pasting labels on blanking pots at 7 shillings a week, was present to see her receive it.—Westminster Gazette.

Twain and the Rivermen.

Mark Twain once told to a party of friends the following story on himself: On one occasion when he started on a trip down the Mississippi river on a flatboat he was advised never to answer the questions asked by rivermen on other boats and never to bandy words with them, as he would be sure always to come out second best. He followed the advice religiously for a time, but one day he thought he saw a chance to get the better of a riverman who called out: "Hey, thar, what yer loaded with?" "Jackasses. Don't you want to come aboard?" yelled back Twain. "That's what I reckoned seed'n' as how they let their biggest donkey hev ther run of the deck!" came back Twain made a dive below as all the rivermen in the neighborhood set up a derisive laugh at his expense.

"Niggering" Logs.

The question was asked me as a native of Maine if I could find out what "niggering" logs meant in the statement "We niggered the logs." I found that to "nigger" logs was to save the labor of chopping them into lengths by piling them up crossed at points where it was desired to separate them. By building fires under these crossings several logs could be burned into sections at once. Because "a nigger" was supposed to be lazy this lazy man's way of cutting logs into lengths was, naturally enough, called "niggering."—Appleton Morgan in New Shakespeareana.

The Inexpensive Policeman.

Mr. Walter Seymour, who writes "Ups and Downs of a Wandering Life," had Thorold Rogers for a tutor while at Oxford. Rogers was as amusing as he was heterodox. "I remember asking him one day, 'Mr. Rogers, what do you consider the origin of the idea of the devil?' 'Cheapest policeman they could find!'"

A Mistake.

Applicant For Situation—I've come about that job wot was advertised. Employer—Well, can you do the work? Applicant (in great alarm)—Work! I thought it was a foreman you wanted, to relieve him in his distress.

His Penalty.

Geraldine—What did pa say when you asked him for my hand? Gerald—He said that he wouldn't stand in the way of my unhappiness if I needed the money badly.—New York Press.

No Escape.

Bella—I understand your sister married a struggling young man? Gus—Yes; he struggled hard, but he couldn't get away from her.

There are many religions, but there is only one morality.—Riviera.

BERRYMAN'S FALL OPENING TODAY

The formal autumn opening of Berryman's store is taking place this afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock and will be continued this evening, from 7 to 10 o'clock at which time there will be an orchestra. The opening is for the display of all goods over the store, with the fall millinery attractions and the display of women's ready-to-wear suits and dresses of course the feature. No goods will be sold in the evening.

Tonight is the big night grand Moose parade. Several lodges of Moose from various parts of the State and the great Moose Mr. Craig will be here to address the various organizations and this will also be presentation night of all of the gifts won in the various contests and crowning of the queen of the carnival at the grand water show, the Electric Fountain, and on Friday night the little pony will have a new home at 9:30. Come both nights. Saturday night will be the closing night and we can all be together and say farewell to the Great Hatch Shows for 1910.

Such a Bore to Dress.

A belated traveler who was compelled to stay all night in a backwoods cabin says that soon after the frugal meal a tall, gaunt youth of eighteen and an equally sallow and gaunt girl of seventeen, both barefooted, took their hats from wooden pegs in the wall and prepared to go out, whereupon the mother, taking her pipe from between her teeth, said reprovingly: "Go 'long an' wash your feet, Levi—you and Looey, both! Hain't you 'shamed to go off to an evenin' party without washin' your feet?" They obeyed, but as Levi took the washpan from a bench by the door he said with a grumble: "I'd 'bout as soon stay home from a party as to have to fix up for it."

How Parchment Came to Be Used.

When the literary jealousy of the Egyptians caused them to stop the supply of papyrus, the king of Pergamos, a city in Asia Minor, introduced the use of sheepskin in a form called, from the place of its invention, parchment, whence our word parchment is believed to be derived. Vellum, a finer article, made from calfskin, was also used. Many of the books done on vellum in the middle ages were transcribed by monks, and often it took years to complete a single copy.

Eddystone Island.

The smallest inhabited island in the world is that on which the Eddystone lighthouse stands. At low water it is thirty feet in diameter. At high water the lighthouse, whose diameter at the base is eight and three-fourths feet, completely covers it. It is inhabited by three persons. It lies nine miles off the Cornish coast and fourteen miles southeast of Plymouth breakwater. Flattholme, an island in the British channel, is only a mile and a half in circumference, but, consisting mostly of rich pasture lands, supports a farmhouse besides the lighthouse, with a revolving light 156 feet above the sea. There are about 100,000 islands, large and small, scattered over the oceans. America alone has 5,500 around its coasts. There are 365 in the bay of Rio Janeiro, 16,000 between Madagascar and India and some 1,200 off the eastern coast of Australia between its mainland and New Guinea.

Jenny Lind and the Trill.

Jenny Lind after years of steady practice believed that the much-coveted trill was for her an impossibility. She practiced hours a day, but was unable to accomplish the feat. One day, thoroughly discouraged, she was sitting in her garden when all at once she looked up into a tree. Above her a bird was trilling. She at once went to her piano and through some magic or power of imitation began the trill and from that day never had any further difficulty.

Six different makes of shoes in three months only to throw them away, was almost desperate until she found the Red Cross Shoe

"I have been wearing the Red Cross Shoe for two years. I had, previous to finding the Red Cross Shoe, purchased and cast aside six different makes in about three months and was almost desperate over not being able to get comfortable shoes. Now I always call for the Red Cross Shoe."

If you want to know what real comfort is, wear the Red Cross Shoe this season.

The Red Cross sole is tanned by a special process which preserves all the natural life and suppleness of the leather. Though of regular thickness this sole is so supple you can bend it double when new.

This entirely prevents the burning and "drawing" stiff soles cause. The moment you put it on, you notice the difference—it is so easy on your feet. High Shoes $4, $4.50 and $5. Oxfords $3.50 and $4.
